DATE BUCKET LIST: 11 COUPLES ACTIVITIES YOU NEED TO TRY IN 2018

Including Michelin star dining experiences, rafting down the Liffey and learning how to cook together

Those of you lacking imagination in the dating department, rejoice! Once again, we're here to make you look good.

In you find yourself currently situated within a rut, allow us to help you get unstuck. The next date night you have don't just go back to the same old haunts, instead try something a little bit different.

And the beauty is you even have to use your brain to do it, we've already done it for you!

Simply scroll through the date options we've assembled below, pick whichever ones that tickle your fancy and pass them off as your own ideas.

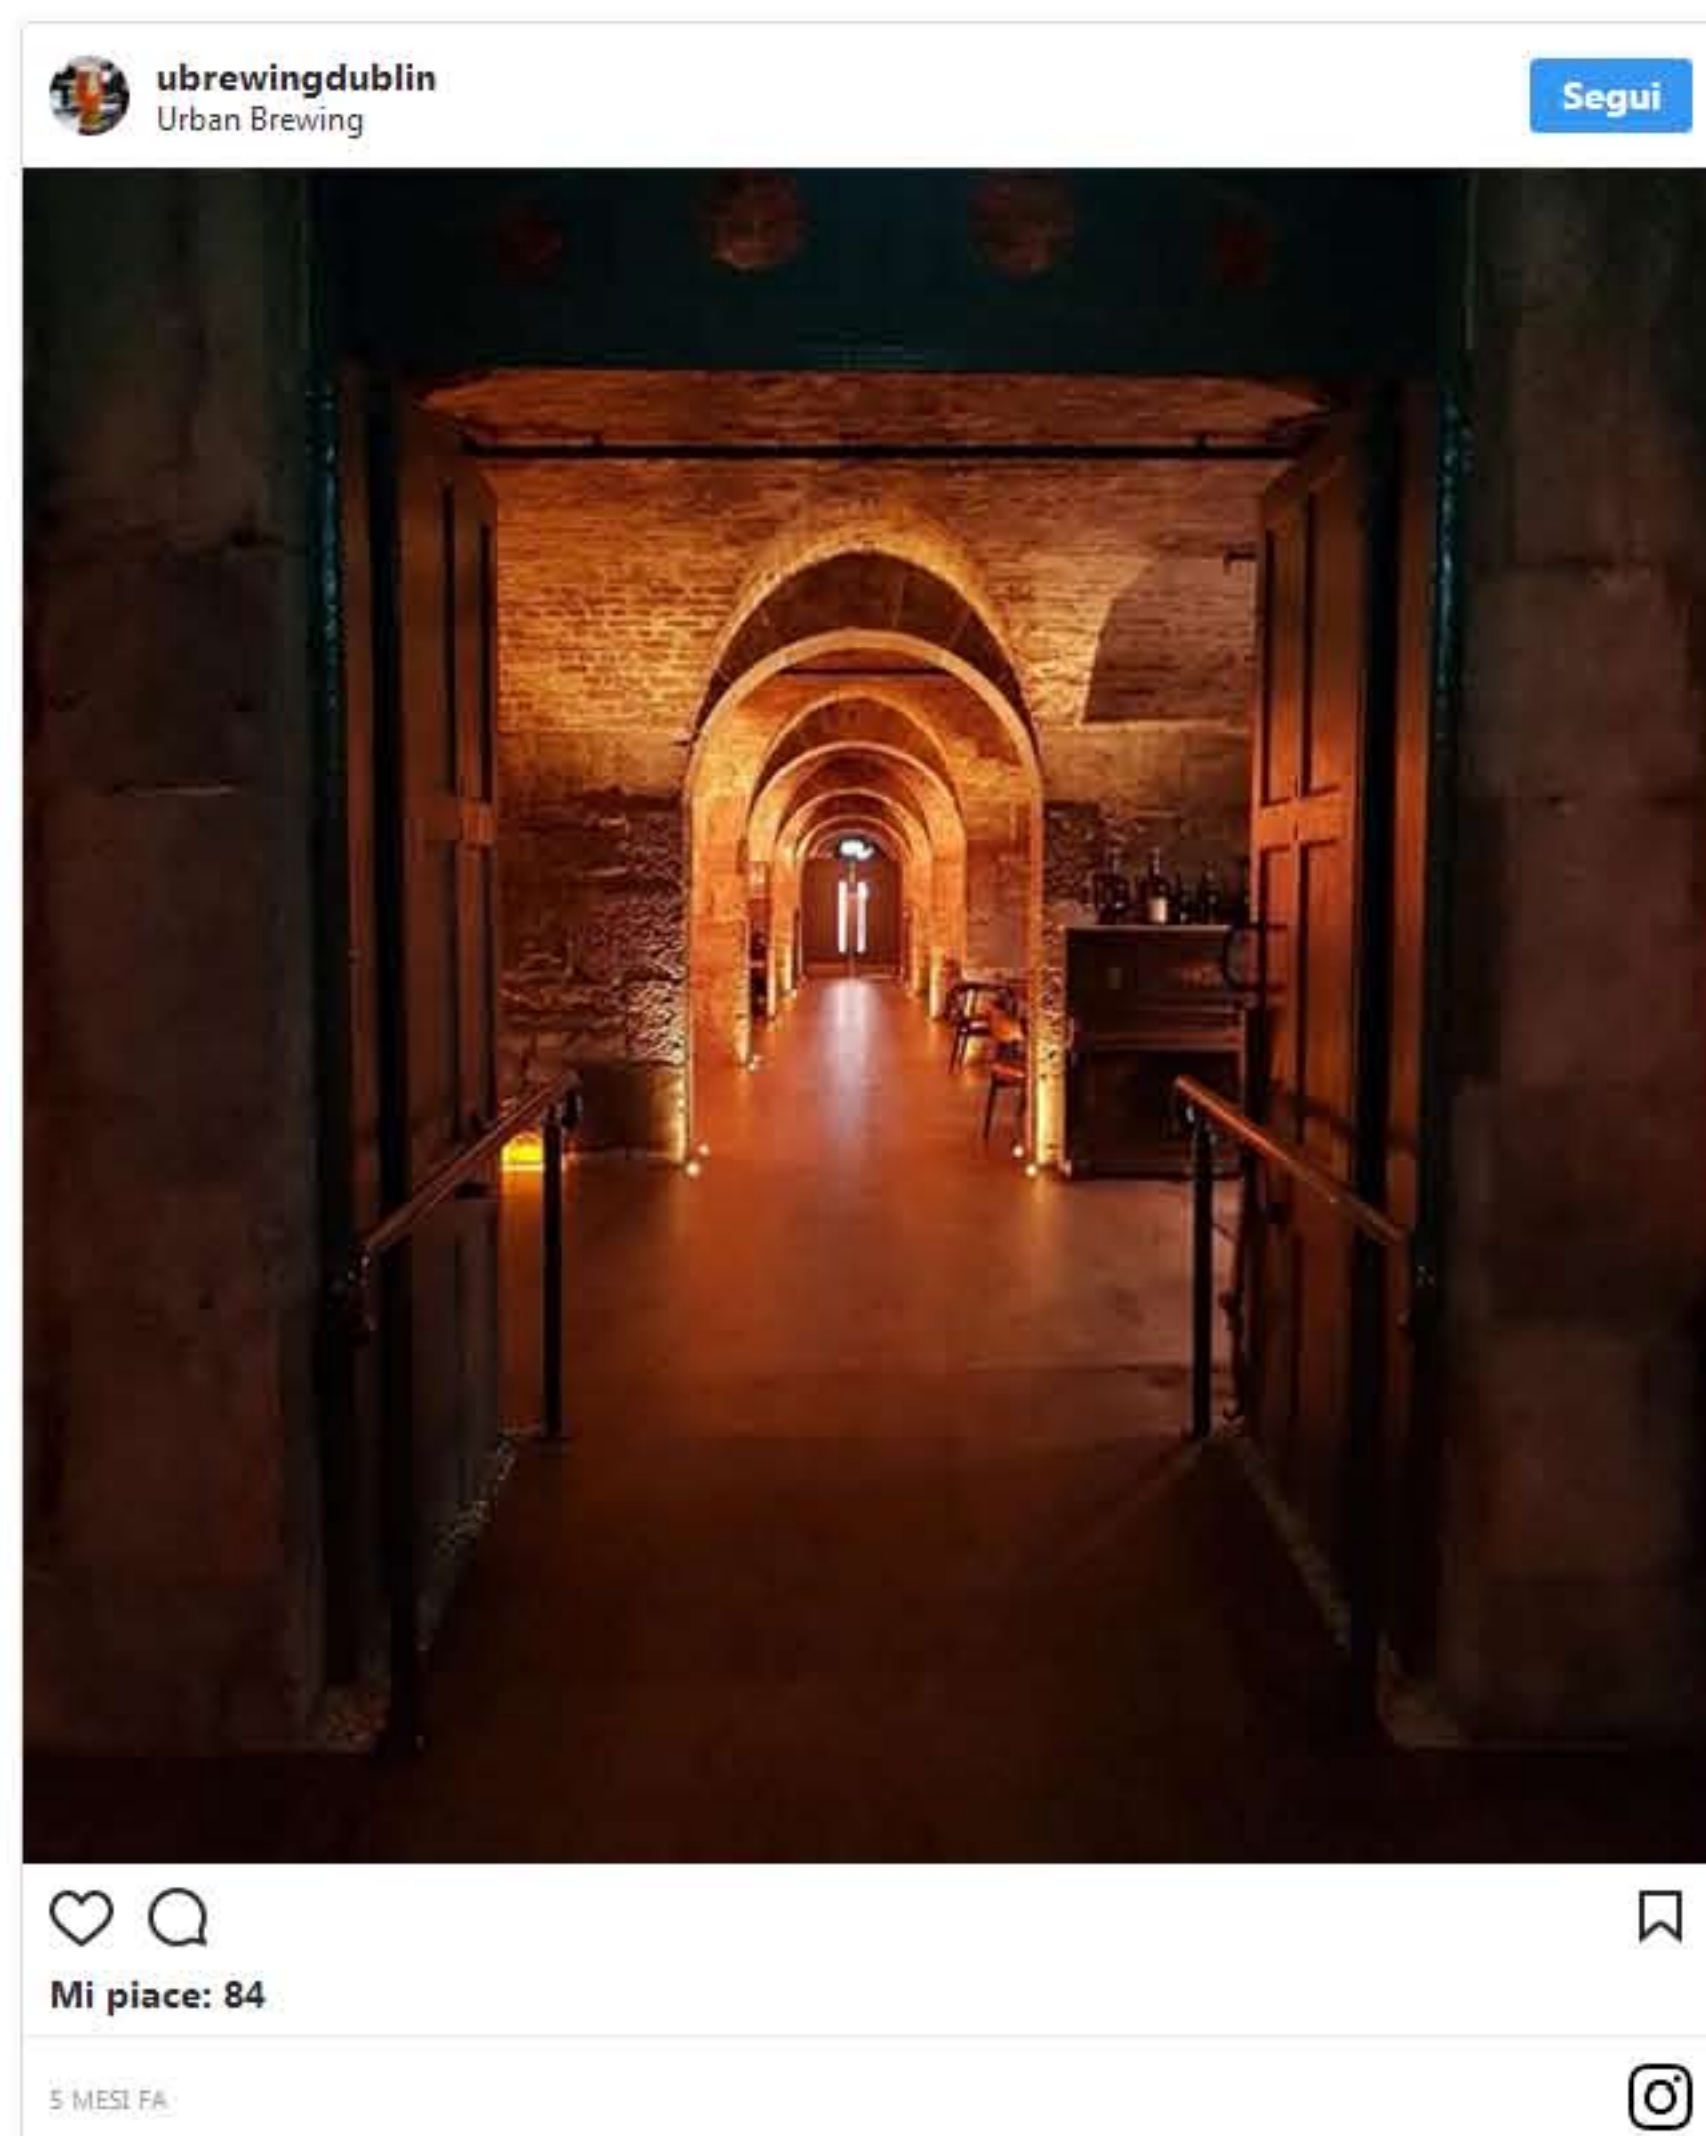

We won't tell if you don't.

1. Descend into Urban Brewing

In the cavernous vaults beneath the chq building at the IFSC you'll find this underground gem.

The microbrewery boasts two distinctive bars, the Stack A Restaurant and with its well-lit, photogenic surroundings it's definitely worth taking a chance on for dinner or drinks. And, as the name suggests, beer fanatics will adore the range of craft brews on offer.

You can make a reservation for Urban Brewing HERE.

2. Do an Italian cooking class at Pinocchio

Don't let the word "class" put you off, you'd be surprised at how much craic this is.

You'll be thrown in the deep end (in a good way) by a chef as you get straight down to the business of making your very own authentic three-course Italian meal. Don't worry if you think you'll do poorly, stumbling your way through the experience is all part of the fun.

And if you manage to improve your other half's cooking skills in the process, well, that's just a happy side effect.

Book your cooking class at Pinocchio locations in Ranelagh or Temple Bar HERE.
