Neighbourhood Spotlight: Where To Wine & Dine In Ranelagh

by GERALDINE CARTON

01 MARCH 2018

There's no doubt about it. Ranelagh is a 10/10 haven for “foodies” (and for everyone else who quietly enjoys food on a daily basis, sans title). With about 80% of the businesses in this locale offering eats and treats in some shape or form, you won't find a better place to end up in when you're in need of a good feed.

But don't be fooled; food isn't all that this buzzy southside village is good for. The array of pubs and bars dotted in between the cafes and restaurants is equally impressive, and the quality of people-watching is golden.

There really are so many places to love in Ranelagh, but here are our absolute favourites...

Dinner

The Wild Goose

Really incredible food and wines here, owner Kevin Mc Mahon never fails to give a great welcome. Notable dishes include the goose main and the aubergine and goats cheese starter.

Pinocchio

Tucked away under the Ranelagh LUAS stop, it might not have great stage presence, but serves up a fantastic culinary performance every time.

Host

The new kid on the block (co-owned by Chloe Kearney and head chef Niall McDermott), the minimal decor ensures that your attention stays on the adventurous menu which boasts an array of small, sharing-style, mouth-watering dishes.
